

Howard Freeman

After qualifying in Leeds in 1985, Howard came to London the following year. Initially specialising in litigation, in 1989 Howard decided to concentrate on property and property/business related matters. However, his litigation background has been invaluable in helping to deal with the many disputes that often arise in property/business transactions and preventing problems arising in the first place.

After being a partner in a large firm, Howard set up Freemans in 1995 and remains the Senior Partner.

He specialises in all types of property transactions and has particular expertise in retail/office leases, development and investment sales and purchases. In addition Howard deals with many types of business transactions including share/asset sales and purchases.

Howard is married with two children. He has a great love of sport although now it is mainly watching rather than playing. Hailing from Blackpool he was originally a supporter of Blackpool Football Club but now he is a "mad" Watford Football Club fan and season ticket holder.